Black Cats' luck is out as Saints continue run

Adam Leitch

SAINTS continued their unbeaten away start to the Premier League season as they defeated Sunderland 1-0 at the Stadium of Light.

Dusan Tadic's second half penalty was the difference between the teams, but the score didn't tell the full story of a game in which Saints dominated possession.

Victory moved Saints to within one point of fifth placed West Ham.

Sunderland showed their intentions early by playing a looping diagonal ball from the kick off and winning a corner.

It was long and it was direct and it was going to be an aerial battle for Saints.

Sunderland won the ball from the corner but Younes Kaboul could only loop it tamely to Maarten Stekelen-Jordy Clasie was the first to try his luck for Saints, opting to shoot from distance after Sunderland allowed him time on the ball but his effort went over the bar.

Saints were dominating possession in the early stages, clearly trying to remain patient, take the sting out of the Black Cats and frustrate the home crowd.

Sadio Mane collected a

TEAM NEWS

RONALD Koeman made two changes to the side that defeated Bournemouth for the trip to Sunderland.

One was enforced with James Ward-Prowse selected to replace Victor Wanyama, who was serving a one game ban after two late yellow cards against the Cherries.

The other saw Mava Yoshida preferred to Cedric Soares at right back. Jose Fonte recovered from the hamstring injury that forced him off against Bournemouth.

Saints: Stekelenburg, Yoshida, Fonte, van Dijk, Bertrand, Ward-Prowse, Clasie, S Davis, Mane, Tadic, Pelle. Subs: K. Davis, Caulker, Cedric, Martina, Romeu, Juanmi, Seager, booking after just 12 minutes for a sliding tackle which scythed down Billy Jones.

Saints created a fantastic chance to take the lead on 16 minutes thanks to some slick football.

He flicked it back and inside to Tadic, who had continued his run.

However, Costel Pantili-mon charged out and spread himself to save as Tadic shot from ten yards out.

Saints threatened again on 22 minutes, this time a half cleared cross finding Mane 12 yards out but his first time half volley on the turn was fairly central and Pantilimon pushed it away.

The tone of the first half really didn't alter much

Saints still had most of the possession and looked by far the more incisive going for-

Sunderland's biggest threat was down their left hand side with Duncan Watmore trying to get at Maya Yoshida, but they did look short of quality in the final third and were struggling to see much of the hall.

That was really summed up by Ola Toivonen's effort from 20 yards out which was sliced embarrassingly wide.

Adam Johnson picked up a booking for pulling back Mane as the game fell a little

But at half time it was Saints by far the happier side as they just needed to find a killer touch to go with the strong defensive performance and domination of possession they had planned. Sunderland made a half time change with Fabio Borini replacing Toivonen.

The Black Cats again came out with purpose and determination but were finding it hard to get through Saints.

Adam Johnson did at least manage a shot from distance, but again it was well wide.

Saints quickly broke and Mane drilled in a shot from 20 yards that was well struck but straight at Pantilimon who pushed it away.

Moments later Mane couldn't make a connection with the ball six yards out as he stretched to try and finish on the turn after Pelle's cushioned header back across goal.

Mane was in the thick of the action again on 55 minutes as he collected another half cleared cross but his shot was blocked before Pelle's follow-up got the same treatment.

DeAndre Yedlin took one for the team as he took a kick in the head from Mane to prevent the Saints man a chance of turning home at the far post after Jose Fonte's flicked header from a corner.

Saints came agonisingly close to breaking the deadlock on the hour mark as Tadic's left wing cross was headed only as far as Steven Davis at the far post 12 yards out.

He controlled the ball on his chest and fired in a shot that beat Pantilimon but not Sebastian Coates who got back to clear off the line

They had an even better chance though after winning a penalty.

Tadic fed the overlapping Bertrand on the left wing and Yann M'Vila slid in and took him out, getting nowhere near the ball.

It was an easy decision for referee Michael Jones who pointed to the spot.

Tadic stepped up and though Pantilimon guessed correctly diving to his left it was well struck and in the corner and Saints were 1-0 up.

Sunderland responded with their second change with Jack Rodwell replacing Steven Fletch-

They certainly rallied with Stekelenburg having to make his first real save of the day to block a fierce drive from Borini at his near post before Johnson's free kick went close.

Sunderland made an attacking

ing on for Jordi Gomez.

Saints responded with Oriol Romeu replacing Clasie before Juanmi came on for Mane with seven minutes remaining.

Sunderland appealed for a penalty of their own as Rodwell's flicked header from a corner struck Yoshida on the arm but he was turning away from the ball and it hit him from close range leading Jones to wave it away.

Saints made a change in the final minute with Steven Caulker providing some extra aerial presence in place of Tadic.

There were five minutes of add- $\operatorname{ed}\nolimits$ time for Saints to see out which they did with relative ease to keep their fantastic away form rolling

Win 'boosts confidence'

RONALD Koeman admitted the importance to his team of their record breaking start to the season after they secured another away day victory.

A 1-0 win over Sunderland at the Stadium of Light made it six straight games without defeat for Saints on the road since the start of this campaign.

Koeman confessed that the record is a key motivator for the team at this point in time. He said: "It's important.

Important for the confidence, important for the way how we like to play.

"We don't play different to how we do, or like to do, away. That's the best way to be consistent.

'OK, we get the chance to have a lot of ball possession from the start in the game and then it's to be patient

"You can compare this game to the West Brom game away and it's not easy to create but I think the level in front was higher and that makes the Koeman was happy with the display from his team, and that they converted the performance into a victory.

"I think the performance today was very consistent, with good concentration until the last second," reflected Koeman. "It's always difficult – because Sunderland had a good defensive organisation it is difficult to break down and it is maybe more difficult to be patient and to keep the defensive organisation by counter attacks.

"I think it was the best game how we did pressing after losing the ball.

"We had good reaction in the team and that makes it very difficult for them to play out of the defenders and that was good.'

He added: "It's not always about to have a lot of ball possession, but if you have the ball, they can't score and if you are creating then you have more chances to win the game.

Football can be odd game – McClaren

NEWCASTLE manager Steve McClaren was honest in his assessment of the game and told BT Sport: "Sometimes football just cannot be explained.

"We've played so well recently, great performances, great football, not got the results and not scored goals and today we couldn't play football.

"One bit of quality, great football to get the goal, a little bit more of that and we would have been comfortable, but we just caused our own problems.

"Credit to Bournemouth they kept coming and coming. They played with intensity, created great chances and we worked hard for our luck, we've not had it in recent weeks, we had it today but we'll take it."

McClaren was pleased with goalkeeper Rob Elliot, who proved his fitness as he pulled off a string of fine saves to deny the hosts.

He added: "We were worried after last week's game but he had trained the last couple of days.

"He was magnificent and

that's what you need, [it's] not all the time can you go away and play the good football you want to play, sometimes you have to dig in "

Bournemouth boss Eddie Howe admitted his team could not have done much more to take something from the game.

He said: "We were playing a good side like Newcastle and they got in our box twice in the whole game.

"We penned them in and had good chances, and we just haven't taken them.

"I've told them to keep the faith, keep doing what you're doing because if we keep performing like that and creating as many chances as that in a game, we'll win games."

Unlucky Cherries denied by Elliot

Newcastle United goalkeeper Robert Elliot

ROB Elliot played through the pain of thigh trouble to secure Newcastle's first away win in 10 months in an edgy 1-0 victory at Bournemouth.

The United goalkeeper thwarted the dominant hosts with a string of fine saves, handing manager Steve Mc-Claren his first win on the road.

Ayoze Perez's sucker-punch strike secured the points for Newcastle, who only produced that solitary shot on target at Dean Court.

Newcastle rode their luck en route to their second Barclays Premier League win of the campaign, and their first away victory since a 3-0 triumph at Hull City at the end of January.

of January.
Elliot pulled off at least five crucial saves to frustrate Eddie Howe's creative but toothless Bournemouth – and that after remaining a doubt right up until kick-off.

Newcastle took teenage academy keeper Brendan Pearson to the south coast, and the 18-year-old even warmed up just in case Elliot's injury worsened again.

McClaren did not need to call on the youngster, however, as Elliot eased Newcastle's goalkeeping woes with Tim Krul and Karl Darlow sidelined.

Bournemouth laid consistent siege to his goal in a onesided first-half, only to turn around trailing to the visitors' solitary strike.

Josh King and Matt Ritchie will kick themselves for weak finishes, while Adam Smith fired just over with the goal at his mercy.
Elliot's best save of the half

Elliot's best save of the half came from Dan Gosling's farpost header – the 29-year-old stopper cementing his inspired showing with a smart point-blank save.

Bournemouth should have easily capitalised on New-castle's midfield misalignment and defensive disarray – instead McClaren's men rode their luck and grabbed the lead.

Aleksandar Mitrovic's flick opened the space for Georginio Wijnaldum to play in Perez, with the Spain forward toe-poking home.

Adam Federici ought to have kept out the tame effort, but Newcastle's battling horde could hardly have cared less.

The second half opened in exactly the same vein as the first, with Elliot again denying the hosts.

Ritchie raced onto a dangerous cross to head goalwards, only for the Newcastle goalkeeper to tip over the bar.

Gosling fluffed another effort to continue Bournemouth's profligate trend and then Junior Stanislas blasted wildly over in acres of space. Chancel Mbemba barged Andrew Surman off the ball in the box just past the hour, but referee Lee Mason waved away Bournemouth's penalty calls. After so many half-chances and missed opportunities, the hosts' heads finally dropped, leaving the tie to peter out somewhat.

A curiously high tally of six additional minutes rallied Bournemouth slightly, but still Newcastle clung on for a victory to boost their bid to ease away from the rel-

Pellegrini not taking table at face value

MANUEL Pellegrini has welcomed Remi Garde to the Premier League but hopes the new manager effect at Aston Villa takes a week to kick in.

Aston Villa takes a week to kick in.
Pellegrini takes his Manchester City side to Villa Park on Sunday to take on the struggling side that Frenchman Garde took charge of earlier in the week.

With Villa two points adrift at the bottom of the Barclays Premier League and City top heading into the weekend's fixtures, form would suggest Pellegrini has little to worry

But the Chilean does not see it that way, wary of the bounce Garde could spark after shaking things up in training this week.

"I am expecting him to delay one

"I am expecting him to delay one week more," said Pellegrini, jokingly, when asked about Garde's likely impact. "No, always when you have a new manager you have some reaction.

"It is very difficult for me to say how they will approach it. It depends on the mentality of the new manager, it depends on a lot of things.

"The important thing is we must expect that we have have a strong and difficult team in front of us." Pellegrini met Garde briefly, just as training base.

"He was here in Carrington two years ago," he said. "He is a friend of Patrick Vieira's and he wanted to talk about football and working.

"He is a young and experienced manager, having been at an important club like Lyon. I am sure and I hope he will have a very good performance – after our game with Aston Villa."

Pellegrini has earned plaudits for some of his tactical decisions in recent weeks. During the goalless derby draw at Manchester United a fortnight ago, Pellegrini opted for caution in the closing stages to secure a point after realising United had nullified his usual attacking game. In previous seasons he has been criticised for sticking stubbornly to his default approach.

Pardew aims for an Anfield repeat

Palace boss says last season's win should be the inspiration to stop Klopp

ALAN Pardew has called on Yannick Bolasie and Jason Puncheon to be inspired by their performances against Liverpool last season when Crystal Palace return to Anfield on Sunday.

In Steven Gerrard's final fixture at the famous stadium in May, Palace were trailing 1-0 until former Saint Puncheon's equalising goal led to him combining with fellow forward Bolasie to inspire Palace's eventual 3-1 win.

Liverpool were then a team in decline under Brendan Rodgers but since Jurgen Klopp's appointment as his successor they have remained undefeated in six, winning their past three, and on Sunday will likely prove more difficult opposition.

Pardew – who signed Puncheon from Plymouth in January, 2010, during his time at St Mary's – is considering starting with Bolasie at centre forward given Marouane Chamakh and Connor Wickham lack fitness, and Dwight Gayle faces a late test on a hamstring problem.

Even with his reduced attacking options Pardew does not believe the solution is simply to defend, and explained that last week's positive performance in the 0-0 draw with Manchester United demonstrates their ability to challenge Liverpool.

"I think in this game (last season) particularly, one or two of our players were terrific," Pardew said. "Bolasie and Puncheon were excellent and you take that confidence into the game. I know as a player, when I played well and returned the year after, I was expecting to play well again. That is natural.

"The one thing about playing Liverpool is that you have to have ambition. Particularly at Anfield because the way the game starts, that emotional song, the history of the club, it starts to hit at your ambition.

"Then they are good with the ball, they have long periods of possession, they keep their attacks sustained, so your ambition dwindles. "What you have got to do is keep that ambition by putting them on the back foot as much as you can. And if you can do that like we did last year, you can surprise yourselves and win."

On Bolasie's likely starting position, Pardew said: "I'm not sure yet. I've not made my mind up. The Gayle injury has just knocked me a little bit. (Striker Patrick) Bamford is an option of course.

"I do feel that there was a freshness about us at United that just slipped out of us the couple of games previous to that. I thought we were back to our best. If we turn up at Liverpool like that, I think we will give them a hell of a game."

It's been a long week

MAURICIO Pochettino believes Tottenham's packed week may benefit Arsenal in Sunday's north London derby.

The clash at the Emirates will be Spurs' third game in seven days after they beat Aston Villa on Monday, and then Anderlecht on Thursday in the Europa League.
Arsenal were in Champions

Arsenal were in Champions League action on Wednesday, as they were hammered 5-1 at Bayern Munich but, returning to London on Thursday morning, Arsene Wenger's men have enjoyed an extra day's recovery ahead of this weekend's crunch meeting.

"I don't want to put out the idea they have an advantage in the game," former Saints boss Pochettino said.

"But it is true when you play against Anderlecht in the Europa League, it is difficult to play Thursday and Sunday.

"Then when you play Monday against a very motivated team like Aston Villa and you need to run and suffer a lot, it is one day less to recover.

"It is not an excuse. We are very strong in our mind and the way we showed character on Thursday and Monday showed we are ready to try 100 per cent to win."

McClaren tips Howe

FORMER England boss Steve McClaren has tipped Eddie Howe to follow in his footsteps one days as the pair prepared to do battle in the Barclays Premier League.

Newcastle head coach McClaren went head-to-head with his Bournemouth counterpart at the Vitality Stadium this weekend hugely impressed by what the 37-year-old has already achieved in his managerial career.

The 54-year-old said: "How he has got Bournemouth up, he has done a fantastic job, and he has got the potential to be a future England manager if he keeps going the way he is.

"He plays the game in the right way, the right style, the right temperament, the right emotional control. He's young, he's got years ahead of him."

Newcastle won 1-0.

Strevens strikes in a day of FA Cup magic for Spitfires

Penalty puts paid to league team in captivating upset

EASTLEIGH produced the finest result in their history to knock league side Crewe Alexandra out of the FA Cup.

Ben Strevens's 75th-minute penalty was enough to see off the League One side, who had 'keeper Ben Garratt sent off after the break, writes Paul McNamara.

Strevens's goal sparked scenes of pandemonium, with every single outfield Spitfires player racing over jubilantly to celebrate with their joyous supporters.

A few nervy late moments aside, Chris Todd's team comfortably kept the side 31 places above them at bay for the remainder of the contest to secure a place in next month's second round.

Crewe were clearly intent on striking an early blow on their underdog visitors, with Ross Flitney quick off his line to deny Callum Saunders in the opening minutes.

He was soon in action again, holding on when Marcus Haber met Jon Guthrie's left-wing cross with a firm header.

Haber then couldn't direct his cushioned finish on goal, following Inman's lifted delivery from the left.

With that, the tide began to turn.

James Jones blocked Strevens's effort, before Andy Drury's exquisite chipped pass sent Yemi Odubade in on goal.

Garratt hesitated, but he was saved by Ben Nugent scrambling back to clear the attacker's prodded strike off the line.

Odubade, though, was soon at the heart of a terrific counter, linking with James Constable, before being denied point blank by the onrushing Garratt.

As the hosts came under the cosh, the Gresty Road crowd gave full vent to their frustration.

Temperatures rose soon after the break as Joe Partington's reckless tackle left Brad Inman in a heap.

Constable followed his team-mate into the book for his part in the ensuing melee – but the home side were rattled.

George Ray's slip allowed Odubade to scamper onto a flick from Strevens, with Nugent flinging himself in the way of the striker's shot to preserve the stalemate.

When Odubade was next sent on his way by a pass down the left by Drury, however, Garratt mistimed his charge. The Eastleigh man got there first to nudge the ball past the 'keeper, who cleaned out his opponent.

The consequent red card was inevitable. Replacement stopper Daniel Nizic was spared any immediate trouble, as Josh Payne's free-kick skipped off the top of the net.

Nizic was in the thick of things before long, though.

Crewe's rearguard made a complete hash of substitute Michael Green's pumped clearance, with Green's fellow replacement Ross Lafayette on his toes to capitalise as neither Ray nor Nizic took charge.

The 'keeper clipped Lafayette's heels as he sought to recover, with captain Strevens then stepping up to stroke home the resultant spot-kick.

Sixty seconds after the goal, Green was perfectly placed to hack Inman's scuffed effort from the line. Odubade volleyed over from 12

Odubade volleyed over from 12 yards, Drury bent an effort wide of the left post and Payne went close as the Spitfires chased a killer strike.

It didn't matter. Eastleigh had created their latest piece of history.

Hughes finding right balance in Euro hunt

WITH the ever shortening leashes for managers in the league, establishing a team identity built around the tactics and style of play of the manager is becoming increasingly difficult.

To the point where teams appear to be losing their traditional identity to keep up with the Joneses and what works.

Under Mark Hughes, Stoke have slowly but surely pushed aside the old Pulis 4-4-2 to play the more in vogue 4-3-2-1.

As with many managers, the transition wasn't easy. Hughes realised not all the players were exactly adept at operating in his preferred style of play.

preferred style of play.

It's been a marked shift in tactics and one that hasn't gone unnoticed across the league. Players like Bojan, Arnautotivic and Diouf are creative and have the pace to actually lead an attack.

Something Stoke teams of old consistently lacked. With the signing of Shaqiri, the most expensive signing in Stoke history, the knowledge of the transformation seemed to spread beyond England's borders.

Hughes has managed to transform a team that was known as a rugby club into 'Stokelona'.

Stoke are no Barcelona, but it is an important distinction. Developing this new identity is key to attracting new players and succeeding in the league.

Playing the old Stoke style would only take them so far.

The success of Swansea and Southampton, show that being willing to attack and play a 'modern' game are crucial for continued success in the league and hopefully to get to Europe – the key goal of Stoke.

Stoke, like Swansea this year, are seeking to continue to improve and get to Europe.

On paper it seems like the best way to achieve that goal has been to bring in as many new players of the new manager's choosing as possible, while regularly letting the old guard move on.

In reality, as Stoke in particularly are finding out, taking such consistent action isn't exactly the best course.

At one point this year, Stoke had one of the fewest foul rates in the league. They can and will keep possession. Unfortunately what they lacked was a killer edge that the Pulis era lacked. Stoke under Hughes are poor in defending set pieces and poor in creating chances off set pieces.

This would have been unfathomable under Pulis. Injuries to the back line don't explain the full story.

In Hughes' quest to create a more attacking, technical side the hard nosed edge of the team started to slide away.

The problem was for the first part of this season in particular, the lack of traditional identity has resulted in Stoke underperforming.

When they score early goals they were unable to maintain leads. For every come back against Tottenham they had a Norwich. Stoke were consistently losing battles they wouldn't in the past.

Stoke lacked the edge that has defined their identity for so long.

their identity for so long.

Players that brought this edge were no longer on the team. Robert Huth was dealt to Leicester in the off-season, and other key players like Steven N'Zonzi and Asmir Begovic were sold.

At the same time players like Charlie Adam, Jonathan Walters, and Peter Crouch were relegated to the bench.

Rumours circulated that Adam, Walters, and Crouch would follow Huth, N'Zonzi, and Begovic out the door. The core of Stoke's team under Hughes

The core of Stoke's team under Hughes had changed drastically and these players simply didn't fit. In the case of Walters in particular, he was

In the case of Walters in particular, he was in the final year of the contract and this would have been the last opportunity for Stoke to recoup something for him. Interestingly, Hughes and Stoke didn't budge on any of these players as the deadline closed. As we approach the January window talk of these players moving on heightens.

While certain players, like Crouch, bring a monetary value that can't be equalled through their sale, the key these players possess that Stoke missed at the beginning of the year was a link to the old Stoke identity. By inserting Adam to play regularly during both home and away matches, and starting Walters, has helped to settle the team.

These players are not the athletes or technical players that Bojan, Arnautovic, and Diouf may be, but their edge and all out play have been crucial to helping get Stoke on the right track.

Walters, for instance, has been on a strong streak guiding Stoke to critical wins.

Stoke and Hughes have a long way to go for sure. The loss to Watford and continued struggle with set pieces proves that, but a hard fought draw against Newcastle prove Hughes is on the right track in not losing sight of the old for the sake of the new.

It can't hurt if everyone was more like Jonathan Walters.

The week's big talking points with ADAM LEITCH

Savage criticism harsh from Terry

Chelsea captain says he can only 'take it from best'

JOHN Terry probably didn't intend to help Robbie Savage's career when he took a pop at him this week, but that is exactly what he's done.

It was the kind of swipe that arrived with dull predictability rived with dull predictability. For anybody who missed it, Terry, captain of the ailing Chelsea ship, said: "I have come under criticism from players I have looked up to and take it on the chin – Rio Ferdinand, Gary Neville and Jamie Carragher.

"When certain other people speak, maybe I don't listen. Players who have played at a really bad level, who haven't had a career – Robbie Savage being one.

"He has dug me out a couple of times. I take it from the very best, other people – no."

Terry rather seems to have missed the point.

Firstly, he has failed to notice that former players turned pundits are swarming all over the media. To stay at the top of the game you need to be really good or really loud and controversial.

Whether Savage has ever fulfilled the first part is down to personal preference, the second part is bevond dispute.

Only by being controversial, and having people like Terry react to him in this way, will Savage stay relevant and talked about. Terry has assured him of a little bit longer plying his trade towards the top of the punditry tree.

Secondly, Terry has made a mistake which displays a fair degree of arrogance.

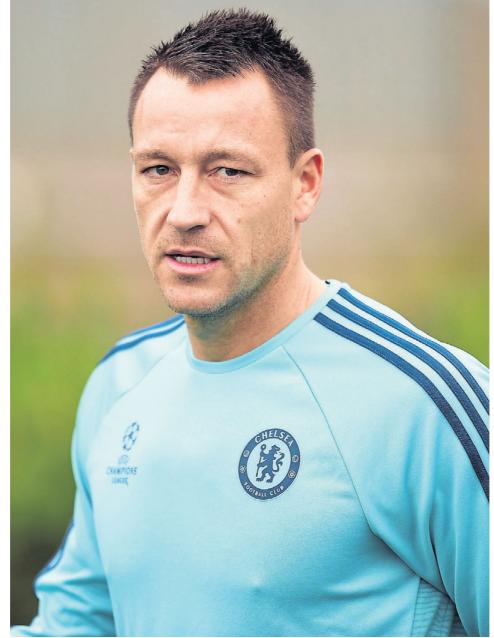

There is often a chip on the shoulder that only those who have played at the top level can understand it, and therefore have the right to comment on it.

Apparently, if you are to criticise Terry you have to go even beyond that Savage played more 350 times in the Premier League. That is some top level footballing career, you might think.

However, it appears that even that is not enough of qualification for Terry to accept. According to him, Savage hasn't had a career and played "at a really bad level."

Also great news for supporters and the like, who are paying his exorbitant wages but are not apparently qualified to comment upon his performances. Unless of course any of them happen to have won a couple of Premier League titles.

If Terry is this thin skinned then it is no wonder Chelsea are struggling for confidence and belief after a few dodgy results.

Terry perhaps might wish to reflect on his choice of career. He has undoubtedly been a fantastic centre half, but he kicks a ball about for a living. It's not rocket science, it's not hard to understand.

There are intricacies to the game of course, but they do not escape many seasoned observers, let alone those who played at the top level.

Garde has tough job

REMI Garde is going to have to be one heck of a manager if he is to save Aston Villa from relegation.

The good news for Garde is that he still has plenty of games in which to turn around Villa's flagging fortunes.

The bad news is that Villa are absolutely woeful.
Garde is what you might kindly term an optimistic appointment.

The perceived wisdom when you are staring down the barrel is to go out and get a manager with a heap of experience of the Premier League, who has been there and done it all before.

It might not be a great long term strategy, but with the new TV deal on the horizon, you cannot afford to slip out of the top flight now.

What Villa have done is try and make their ideal long term appointment, but one that is a colossal gamble in the short term.

It's certainly an interesting approach.

Remy Garde: Best of sporty spelling fails

WHAT with Aston Villa's perilous position in the Premier League relegation zone it is no surprise the club were especially eager to hail the arrival of new boss Remi Garde earlier this week.

But their over-eager website strap-line – #welcomeremy – only managed to serve up more embarrassment as the club managed to spell the name of their would-be saviour incorrectly.

Villa can take some solace from the fact that they are far from the first major sports club to gush out the misspelled platitudes.

Here, the Sports Pink takes a look at some of the finest:

DAVID BECKAM: Okay, back in 1997 he was hardly the global megastar he is today. But still, you would have thought Manchester United would have been aware enough of their rising star not to drop the 'H' from the back of his shirt for the Charity Shield clash with Chelsea.

WAYNE GRETSKY: The NHL superstar was presented with a signed shirt by Ledley King after turning up at White Hart Lane to watch the north London derby against Arsenal last month

One problem: an errant 'S' caused much embarrassment all round.

KING OF SPAIN: Ashley Giles found himself inadvertently elevated to royalty at the peak of his Test cricket career in 2004, when Warwickshire's club shop accidentally added an "A" to mugs intended to proclaim him 'King of Spin'.

The wrong ones immediately sold out.

SACHINE TENDULKAR: Indian cricket authorities blundered in their attempts to hail their legendary batsman on the occasion of his 199th Test in Kolkata 2013.

Shining down from the ground's giant scoreboard came the legend: "Celebrating Sachine (sic) Tendulkar's 199th Test match".

CHRYSTAL PALACE: Charges of a lack of identity might have been levelled at Crystal Palace after they crashed out of the top-flight in 2005.

A shipment of replica shirts had to be sent back after the Eagles found their own name, no less, misspelled on their

No labels needed ...

SAINTS and Bournemouth fans should celebrate together, not embroil themselves in a rivalry.

Well, not yet anyway, writes PE-TER HOWARD.

Much of the debate in the media leading up to last Sunday's match surrounded trying hard to label this match as something, anything. But both clubs' supporters should

But both clubs' supporters should ignore the outside influences that are trying to create a rivalry between the two clubs.

Was it a derby? Was it rivalry? Broadcasters and writers alike struggled to come to a conclusion.

There were suggestions that it should be called the 'New Forest Derby' and discussions on social media rumbled on about comparisons to other derby games across the country.

Questions were fired to Ronald Koeman and Eddie Howe in press conferences about what this game meant, or what it should be called.

Analysis wore on through the week and up to the weekend. It was as if the football nation just couldn't cope without labelling this game.

It seems that in this current climate, we just can't cope without branding a game or a player as something – a title.

But, really, what both sets of should be focusing on, and what should have dominated discussion, was where these two clubs had come from and just how remarkable it is that they are playing in the Premier League against each other:

There was far too much bellyaching about distances between the clubs, the parameters that constitute a local derby, and discussing that Saints v Cherries would never EVER live up to Saints v Portsmouth.

Yes, there were many valid points made, but what was the point in all of this? Surely, instead of squabbling between each other, there should have been celebrations together.

Why? Because the fact that this game was happening was nothing short of a miracle.

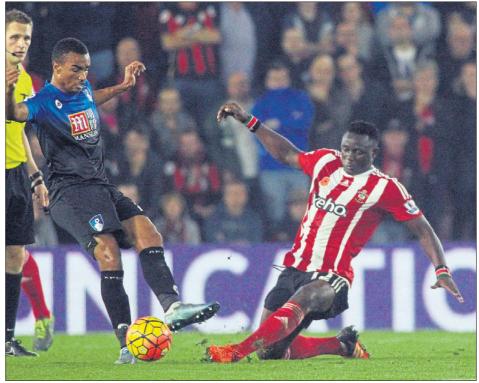

Just six years ago Saints were slumped at the bottom of League One – a broken club. They were financially exhausted and a return to the Premier League was an impossible dream.

And just a year before that, in 2008, Cherries were on the very brink of liquidation, their very existence hanging by a thread.

Bucket collectors came around at Dean Court in an attempt to keep the club alive – that's how bad it was.

The glitz and glamour of the Premier League for Bournemouth would have just been a hallucination at that point.

It probably still feels like an illusion for the Cherries faithful – after all, their club was just five minutes away from going bust and about to drop out of the Football League.

Graziano Pelle and Sylvain Distin. Southampton v Bournemouth, Barclays Premier League, St Mary's Stadium.

At those respective points in time, who would have thought that those two seemingly lost causes would ever meet in the top-flight.

But then out of the abyss, two phoenixes rose from the ash, as Cherries and Saints climbed off their knees and not only survived but have actually thrived.

That is the very reason why Sunday's match should have just been a celebration of what seemed impossible not that long ago.

Indeed, the atmosphere was lively and both sets of fans enjoyed the banter – an indication that this game means something to supporters, even if the lines are slightly blurred at this stage.

In 2008, Bournemouth dropped into League Two, after being docked ten points amid a financial crisis.

A year later they narrowly avoided relegation under Howe after being deducted 17 points for breaking Football League insolvency rules.

Smiles then started to creep back on to the faces in the stands at the Goldsands when Howe got the Cherries promoted to League One in 2009/10

It was then in the following campaign that the two club's fates intertwined, with Saints doing the double over Cherries as they sealed promotion to the Championship.

Further up the coast, Saints' resurrection had come down to one man. It was the late Markus Liebherr that saved the club from extinction, stepping into buy the St Mary's outfit in July 2009.

He said at that time that he was in for the long haul, as he endeavoured to revive a club long since stripped of its stature as a top-flight club – a promise that he has delivered on through his legacy by daughter Katharina.

In Markus Liebherr's first season as owner, Saints overcame a tenpoint deduction, finished just off the play-offs and won the JPT.

Saints then sealed double promotions to return to the Premier League under Nigel Adkins.

Down the road in Bournemouth, things were also changing. Howe returned to the Cherries

Howe returned to the Cherries after a 21-month stint at Burnley with the club under the new ownership of Russian Maxim Demin. Bournemouth's fairytale rise had begun.

With Howe back at the helm, Cherries were promoted to the Championship in 2012/13 and then completed a breathtaking promotion to the Premier League last season.

The rags to riches tale of both clubs is simply unbelievable.

It was just the second time in 55 years that the two sides had been in the same division and.

Although both clubs have a rich history, the games between the two sides are still untagged, unlabelled and unknown.

There's little history of the fixture and that means that only time will tell if there's scope to make a rivalry.

At this stage, the general consensus is is that Bournemouth fans, the vocal ones anyway, fancy having a rivalry between the two clubs. Saints supporters, though, mostly saints supporters, though, mostly just want to aim their scorn along the coast in the opposite direction.

The St Mary's faithful are just glad that a club they see as a little sister are as high up as they are and welcome the Cherries' success.

Those attitudes will probably never change, unless they remain in the same league for a long period of time.

If Bournemouth pull off Premier League survival and become established in the top-flight, then that will obviously aid any rivalry develoning.

veloping.
That is, though, far from guaranteed with Bournemouth starting to struggle without the goals of Callum Wilson.

But, in the short term at least, most reasonable fans of both clubs will, I'm sure, just want to celebrate what has happened,

It is phenomenal that the south coast actually has two clubs in the Premier League, let alone in existence. Whatever happens in the future,

Whatever happens in the future, whether a rivalry is born or not, the games this season shouldn't have a label forced upon them.

Instead it should just be about the realisation that these two clubs – who were so close to being nonexistent – are very much alive and kicking at the game's highest level.

On March 1, when Saints make the trip to Dorset, this topic will likely rear its head once more.

And discussion will turn back to the Unlabelled Derby. For now, though, it should be

For now, though, it should be something to be proud of that both clubs are actually able to make history.

Book marks a century since Grace's death

Amazing Grace
The Man Who Was WG
By Richard Tomlinson

Sportsbookofthemonth.com price: £18.00 saving £7.00 on rrp

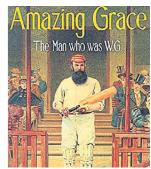

PUBLISHED to coincide with the centenary of WG Grace's death, Richard Tomlinson's mighty tome (it's 430-odd pages in length) joins an almost endless list of biographies that have been written about cricket's greatest ever player.

greatest ever player.
However, while this latest version provides readers with a wealth of detail regarding Grace's colourful life and is extremely well-written, there's little in terms of fresh content.

Statistics provide the barest details of Grace's remarkable career, yet even a century after he died, aged 67, they warrant another airing.

WG was the first cricketer to score 100 first-class centuries; he accumulated a quite staggering 50,000 first class runs and took more than 3,000 wickets.

In one eight-day period during the summer of 1876, he scored two triple centuries en route to assembling a total of 800 runs.

'Amazing Grace' book cover

Financial necessity led Grace to develop his astonishing cricketing prowess

His family had no money (his uncle and father-in-law were both bankrupts) and despite playing during the amateur era, he honed his skills in order to stave off a similar fate despite practicing as a medical doctor.

Tomlinson notes that such was Grace's fame, he was able to secure fees of £1,500 and £3,000 respectively to tour Australia in 1873-74 and 1891-92. Expenses were added to these fees, while he also endorsed the strangesounding Goodfellow's Coca Water and made more money from ghosted newspaper columns. He was a sporting superstar before the word had been invented, a man who played like a professional (and expected to be rewarded as one) when cricket was primarily an amateur pursuit.

Tomlinson is very good describing Grace's demise, although he played into his fifties, his enormous appetite, coupled with an equally colossal capacity for drinking, resulted in him contracting consumption which affected him during the twillight of a truly outstanding career.

There have been plenty of books written about the amazing Grace and thankfully, this stands favourable comparison with any of them.

Jason Matthews

Winchester impress despite losing in the FA Trophy

IT'S a mark of Winchester City's blossoming reputation in local non-League that Weymouth player-boss Jason Matthews was so chuffed to leave the Denplan City Ground with a 2-1 FA Trophy

For all their quality, the Southern Premier high-fliers were made to sweat by a Winchester side fresh up from the Wessex League

And Matthews, a former Eastleigh goalkeeper, is tipping City to hit the heights this season in the Southern One South & West.

At half-time the Terras were staring down the barrel of another early exit from a major cup this season when they trailed to a goal by the Southern One South & West's leading marksman Warren Bentley. However they turned things around after the break thanks to Dean Evans and Jordan Copp.

"It was a fantastic result," smiled Matthews, who was named man-of-the-"Winchester had threats in Dan Cann and Warren Bentley up front and they are a decent side.

"I think they will be right up there in their league come the end of the season and quite a few teams are going to come unstuck at their place.

"Our lads showed great character to come back from a goal down.

"It was a typical end-to-end cup tie and just what you would expect when you are playing a team from a lower league.

"I'm just pleased we got through it." Despite the defeat, Winchester's director of football Dave Malone took many positives, not least a crowd of 349 - the biggest of the first qualifying round – which justified the decision to stage it on a Friday night.

St Ives Town also plumped to play on the Friday against Kettering and they too pulled in 325.

Malone said: "We can take great heart from the fact that their keeper was named man-of-the-match. It just goes to show how much progress we have made and should give us further encouragement for the rest of the season.

Outstanding Citizen Flooks could be the man to watch

On-form defender has played vital role in City's rise

WITH all eyes trained on goal ace Warren Bentley this season, another of Winchester City's brightest talents could easily have slipped under the radar.

But defender Rob Flooks's outstanding form makes him every bit as vital to City's rise up the South-ern One South & West as the man banging in the goals up front, writes WENDY GEE.

Still only 21, Flooks has struck up an excellent partnership with Jamie Thoroughgood in central defence.

And he has consistently been one of the Citizens' standout performers since uprooting from AFC Totton during the summer.

Talent

Formerly with Sholing and Totton reserves, Flooks got his first-team break as a teenager with Fawley AFC in the Sydenhams Premier Division and immediately his talent shone ability this week by agreeing a new 18-month contract.

"Since joining Winchester in the summer, Flooksy has been outstanding and fully deserves the security of this contract," said City's director of football Dave Malone.

"Manager Paul Masters believes that if he continues to improve, he could be coveted by clubs at a higher level. We hope this might be the case but talent like that will not come cheaply!'

After conceding five in their first away game of the season at Wimborne – albeit in a 6-5 victory – City have learned to become more resilient on the road

Flooks's strength and composure has been pivotal to that and week by week he impresses manager Masters

"If I'm totally honest, I didn't know too much about Flooksy, but he's been outstanding ever since he's been at the club," said the boss

Proper defender

"He's good on the ball as well as being a proper defender. "Every game he's played he's been one of our best players.

"At 21, he's still a young age for a centre-half and, if he keeps his feet on the ground, he should have a good future ahead of him.

"Over the last month his partnership with Jamie Thoroughgood has been very strong. People don't talk too much about Jamie but he's another one who's been outstanding.

"Leigh Mills has done a good job covering the full-back areas for us with Jake Newton and Kinger (Danny King) and the whole shape of the side is looking good at this moment.

Traynor quits club

SHANE Traynor has left his post as manager of Sydenhams Premier Division outfit Hamworthy United.

The former AFC Bournemouth youth coach had been with the Hammers for 10 months, initially taking over from Stewart Kearn at the turn of the calendar year

He is the fourth permanent boss to leave United in less than two years and his departure comes a fortnight after he had publicly refuted speculation over the County Ground club axing its playing

With chairman Mike Davis and vice-chair Bruce Scammell having relinquished their roles, rumours had been circulating about United being set to fold but were promptly shot down by club president David Manuel.

Making it clear that he was leaving purely for personal reasons, Traynor said: "The reason for me leaving is family commitments. It is nothing to do with the football

"There is nothing wrong, it is just down to personal circumstances

"Unfortunately I have to take a break at this time, but I will be back in football, hopefully in the near future."

Traynor confirmed his assistant Jeff Taylor and coach Wayne Gavin had followed him out of the County Ground.

"They came in with me and we work as a team," added the outgoing boss.

Regarding the rumours of Hamworthy folding, Manuel told The (Bournemouth) Daily on dissolving the club, there is no reason to.

"Somebody has been spreading rumours that are not true and, in any case, it is not for the committee to decide on dissolving the club, it would be (down to) the

"The chairman has gone and we have lost the manager, but we will have no difficulty in appointing a new chairman.

"You don't dissolve a club because of that. We have had these situations in the past and we have appointed new people.

Merthyr's late strike sinks Poole's FA Trophy hopes

ONE "sloppy" lapse of concentration saw Poole Town fall at the first hurdle in the FA Trophy.

Gethin Jones struck seven minutes from time to seal a 1-0 victory for Southern Premier rivals Merthyr on their 3G pitch.

Former AFC Totton man Luke Roberts, left, went close for the Dolphins, flashing a shot wide after good build-up play by on-loan Gosport Borough striker and ex-Saint Jamie White.

Nick Hutchings produced a fingertip save early in the second half to retain parity, but Jones converted from a corner.

"It was quite an even game and we looked like we would come away with a replay," reflected Poole boss Tom Killick. "But a sloppy moment where we lost concentration briefly at a corner cost us our place in the competition.

"It was frustrating because, other than a free-kick where they hit the bar, there wasn't an awful lot in the game."

Poole travelled without injured trio Alan Connell, Richard Gillespie and Jamie Gleeson and Killick admitted beforehand: "The squad is paper-thin at the moment."

EASTLEIGH paid their own special Remembrance Day tribute ahead last Saturday's National League win over FC Halifax Town.

Members of the Royal British Legion were welcomed to the Silverlake Stadium along with RAF veterans and personnel, members of The Armed Forces and guests from the Fire and Rescue Service.

The Spitfire Marching Band played in front of the main stand before the players and dignitaries were welcomed onto the pitch by a guard of honour comprising local scouts and cubs and Hedge End's under-7 and under-8 footballers.

As the 1,890 crowd fell silent, a moving passage was read out by Royal British Legion veteran Norman Brown and three wreaths were laid in memory of those who lost their lives in two World Wars and other conflicts

A bugler then sounded the last post. Before kick-off the two teams shook hands with some of the afternoon's guests of honour, including Eastleigh MP Mims Davies and Mayor of Eastleigh Jane Welsh, accompanied by the Spitfires' chief executive Mark Jewell Eastleigh's players sported a poppy motif on their shirts which were sold for £50 each with all profits going to The Poppy Appeal.

Experienced players shine for Wimborne in their 3-0 home victory

STEVE Cuss lauded the influence of elder statesmen Wayne Crutcher and Scott Arnold after Wimborne Town had seen off fellow strugglers Wantage 3-0 to ease their Southern One South & West woes.

Goals by Carl Preston, Jamie Davidson and substitute Morgan Turner secured the Magpies' first league win since August, pulling them out of the bottom two on goal difference.

Brockenhurst hope friends can force an FA Cup shocker

Teams became friendly after cup match last month

AS BROCKENHURST went into league battle at Money-fields today, they will have had their fingers crossed for their new-found friends from Wealdstone.

While Brock were knuckling down to the business of fighting for Sydenhams Premier points, Wealdstone were enjoying their moment in the FA Cup first round spotlight at home to Colchester United of League One.

It was two rounds ago that the Stones rolled up at Grigg Lane and ended the Badgers' hopes of a cup giant-killing with a 5-1 third qualifying round victory, writes Wendy Gee.

The Londoners' win was topped off by an audacious strike from Scott Davies from inside his own half which went on to become an internet sensation.

Brock did not deserve to fall so heavily that day, but they were not sore losers and have struck up a friendship with Wealdstone that will hopefully see the National League South club pay a return visit to the New Forest next summer.

Badgers boss Pat McManus explained: "We've kept the links close between the two clubs and Wealdstone have spoken about wanting to come down again for a pre-season friendly. It's in the pipeline.

"We've kept in contact with them and I see the BBC have been using Scott Davies's wonder goal at Grigg Lane as part of their FA Cup montage.

"We're also in touch with a team from the Bergerac area of France and we want them to come over in the summer. They've got an airport close to them with flights into Southampton.

"There's even talk of us having a round-robin tournament here involving Wealdstone and the French team"

Brock's FA Cup run temporarily

Brockenhurst's Scott Joyce hurdles Wealdstone keeper Jon North took their eye off the Wessex Premier ball and they are still playing catchup as they look to climb into the top half of the table.

Last Saturday's 3-1 home win over Fawley AFC lifted them to 14th but, at one stage, McManus feared his "bogey side" would strike again.

"That's the first time we've beaten Fawley at our place since I've been here," he said.

"We've had a habit of losing by the odd goal after dominating and I had a horrible feeling this was going to go the same way. We created lots of first-half chances without ever really testing their keeper."

The signs looked ominous when recent Oilers signing Dan Fry punished Brock from a second-half set-piece, but McManus's men came strong in the last 20 minutes with goals from Scott Joyce, Matt Vokes and sub Kabba Jack.

Pyatt makes a cheeky bid to sign up former Cherries' goalkeepers against Wells City.

His trip down Memory Lane ultimately proved fruitless and it was young ex-Lymo 'keeper Ben Field who came to the rescue, keeping a clean sheet in Lymo's 2-0 first-round win.

Pyatt, who had been forced to use outfield players between the sticks for four matches due to Stuart Williamson's injury, explained: "Our assistant Bob Sullivan knows Vince Bartram (now a Saints' Academy coach) and asked whether he could help out or if he knew of anybody at Southampton who could be available.

"There was no joy, so we kept looking and came across Gareth Stewart. But, with it being last-minute, he had other commitments.

'We spoke to Stuart Williamson and he was prepared to go through the pain barrier, but we were glad to get Ben because we didn't want Willo doing any more damage."

Lymington – boosted by the return of Will Tickle, Jack Odam, Brad Strickland and Dave Marden – proved too strong for their Western League One visitors as goals by Harrison Weeks and club stalwart Darren Ritchie booked their ticket to the second round.

The one negative was that former

AFC Totton and Bashley striker Odam was carried off after suffering a recurrence of a knee injury.

Lymo's reward is a November 21 trip to Bristol Manor Farm of the Western Premier Division who trounced Trevor Senior's Bridport 3-0 at The Creek.

Pyatt's men must beware Bristol goal-ace Dean Stamp – formerly of Exeter City, Taunton and Truro – who destroyed the Bees with a hat-trick and has more than 20 goals this term.

Top scorer Bennett stays at Boro' after shunning Hawks

'It's nice they still appreciate me' -Gosport goal ace

JUSTIN Bennett has signed a contract extension at Gosport Borough until at least 2018.

It underlines his allegiance to the club after National League South neighbours Havant submitted a bid of £12,500 for his services.

With Gosport having themselves tried – and failed – to buy back Bennett's former frontline partner Matt Paterson from Havant, the player himself admitted he thought the Hawks had ulterior motives.

Manager Alex Pike described it as "easily the worst Gosport performance I have seen in 10 years", adding that Hemel's experienced frontline pair of Denis Oli and Jamie Slabber were "too good for our naive defenders."

Justin Bennett has signed a new contract at Gosport.

Basingstoke Town's visit to Maidenhead United was another high-scoring affair – and again the Hampshire side came off second best in a 4-3 thriller:

Maidenhead's Dave Tarpey bagged a hat-trick against his old club, netting the winner seven minutes from time to eclipse goals from Stoke's Shaun McAuley, Louie Soares and David Ray.

Havant were left labouring fifth-tobottom after a 1-1 draw with St Albans at Westleigh Park where Hawks' James Hayter cancelled out Harry Crawford's first-half opener. *An FA tribunal has ruled that Port Vale should compensate Hawant for the signing of young striker JJ Hooper during the summer. Although Hooper was no longer a contracted player at Westleigh Park, he is under 23 and the Hawks played a role in his development.

Winging way back

AFC TOTTON were this week awaiting international clearance for wideman Kyle Joryeff who has winged his way back home from a spell playing in Australia.

A speedy attacking player who is good with both feet, Joryeff started out at Saints Academy and went on to play for the likes of Andover and Winchester City before moving Down Under.

Juryeff, who turns 29 later this month, got to know Totton boss Steve Hollick during their time together at Bashley.

"Kyle moved to Australia and he's been playing in France more recently, based in Paris," said Hollick.

"He plays on the wing and he'll strengthen our squad and give us cover for Gos and Wattsy (Mike Gosney and Nick Watts) who have only played six games together out of 19 this season."

Totton have also lodged seven days' notice of approach with Farnborough for Spanish goalkeeper Victor Silvestre Brotons.

The 22-year-old, who has previously played in Spain for CD El Campello and Hercules B, will provide back-up for Stags' No1 Steve Mowthorpe.

Drew happy with Boatmen's cup showing against bigger fish

SHOLING captain Joel Drew was encouraged by his side's resilient display against Newport County in the first round of the FA Youth Cup on Tuesday

The Boatmen took the Welsh visitors to penalties after holding firm at 0-0 for 120 minutes, but were defeated 4-2 on spot kicks, writes Danny Maiorca.

Sholing's senior side are in the Sydenhams Wessex Premier, five divisions below The Exiles who are a League Two outfit.

Newport will face Southend United in the second round and, despite seeing Sholing's cup run end in disappointment, Drew was proud of their efforts.

"They're a League Two side. We did very well to take them all the way to penalties and they weren't expecting that," the midfielder said.

"We had chances to win the game We were unlucky in the end.

"Everyone was excellent, especially Kieran (Winman) the centre go in extra time.

Some of the visitors' players have already featured in League Two for County this season, including midfielder Lewis Bamford.

And Drew felt that matching such strong opposition was a learning curve for his teammates.

"Hopefully we can take this and the experiences we have all gained tonight into the under-18s league and win that, too," he smiled.

Meanwhile, striker Nick Yeomans felt that it was fair for the tie to be decided via a shootout after an even two hours of football.

"We had opportunities and so did they, it could have gone either way," the young forward said.

"For it to be decided on penalties

'Crouchy' aids Town

HE GOES by the name of 'Crouchy' at Romsey Town. And just like Stoke City's former England star Peter Crouch, Matt Hardy knows where the goal is.

He netted twice as a substitute against Totton & Eling last weekend as Romsey came back from behind for a 3-1 Sydenhams Division One win at the Bypass Ground.

Town gave a first start to Craig Stanley and it was the on-loan Fleet Town man who produced their best chance of the first-half – a rasping 25-yard shot which beat Totton keeper Matthew Taylor but not the crossbar.

But it was Totton who headed for the half-time dressing room one goal to the good thanks to a Sam House penalty.

Whereas recent Romsey sides might have crumbled, this one showed resilience and bounced back when Indrit Elizi lashed home the equaliser from Jordan Chalk's cross.

'Crouchy' did the rest - the tall striker showing neat footwork before finding the far corner for 2-1 and then sweetly chipping Taylor from 20 yards

"Sometimes it doesn't work for managers, but bringing on Crouchy worked for us today," said Town boss Andy Samuels.

"He's had some time in the development squad after coming back from travelling.

"He was unplayable in that last half-hour.

"It's the sort of reaction I want to see from the players.

"if they play in the development squad or are sat on the bench, doing something like that is proving a point to me that they should play."

Samuels was also keen to Samuels was also keen to praise Romsey's back-line who held steady throughout the match.

"Zak Pickett and Matt Page were excellent again," he said.

"Pagey has taken the captain's armband whilst Josh Harvey is out injured and he's taken to the task well."

Boatman look like sailing towards a brighter future

Diaper rewarded after youthful XI beat Totton

IF ever Sholing fans needed a reminder of the bright future ahead, it came in the recent 4-2 win over AFC Totton in the Russell Cotes Cup.

There wasn't a Mason brother in sight as a young, almost unrecognisable Boatmen's side outshone Steve Hollick's Southern League visitors at the Silverlake Arena, writes Wendy Gee

From Jordan Brooks in goal to Nick Yeomans up front, only the most devoted of Sholing supporters would have heard of most of the names in a starting 11 that also included Olegy Tkacovs, Jack Attrill, Victor Odeyemi, Lukas Sabo and Jake Hoole.

Two more youngsters, 17-year-old Joel Drew and Liam Attrill, climbed off the bench on a night when goals by Hoole, Sabo, James Davis and Jamie Bulpitt embarrassed their higher league opponents.

Manager Dave Diaper, who launched a three-year team rebuilding plan during the summer, couldn't have been happier with the young talent on show. "I was so pleased with the performance against Totton," he said. "We rested 10 players that night and fielded five debutants, bringing in a mix of lads who have either come up through the ranks or been signed on for the reserve team.

Sholing's Jamie Bulpitt, right, challenges Salisbury's Kane O'Keefe.

"It just goes to show the quality we've got with all these kids coming through.

"Nick Yeomans is only 17 and we've just signed him on contract. He plays on the right, but we put him up front against Totton and he's got a bright future

"Olegs Tkacovs is a Polish lad who's come through the ranks, but he was away for four or five months last year. He can play anywhere on the righthand side.

"It's a breath of fresh air watching these lads, their energy levels are so good and I think that's what caught Totton out."

Diaper stressed it was important not to rush the young guns' progress. "It was a great result for us but it's all part of the journey for these lads, they mustn't think they've arrived yet. They need to be nurtured and brought through gradually," he said.

"The difference between being a big club and a small club at this level is that a big club has strength in depth and we've definitely got that."

Sholing now entertain Horndean in the RCC round two.

Teenage goalkeeper impresses despite New Milton Town losing by five goals

GOALKEEPING find Piotr Jacucha took centre stage as New Milton Town bowed out of the FA Vase 5-0 at home to Sholing's upcoming opponents Buckland Athletic.

The teenager, making only his second appearance for the Syden-hams One club, pulled off a string of fine saves to prevent the Western League Premier Division high-fliers running up a cricket score. The 18-year-old Bournemouth University student left Linnets boss Jordan Hiscock purring: "Piotr had a fantastic game. He has been training with Poole and it was good of them to offer him to us.

"He has been impressive in the two games. He had a good clean sheet last week and followed up with another excellent performance despite being on the losing Buckland, who host 2014 winners Sholing in the next round on November 21, made a big impression on Hiscock.

The Devon outfit, based in Newton Abbot, led 2-0 after 26 minutes with goals from Lloyd Gardner and Jared Lewington.

Jacucha, a product design student from Poland, then dived full-length to save a 37th-minute penalty – pictured above – and was unfortunate not to keep out Buckland's third, parrying Gavin Hammon's effort at point-blank range only to be beaten by the follow-up.

Further goals from Hammon and
Andy Robertson gave the visitors a deserved victory against a young New Milton side still being mould ed by the new boss.

Hiscock, who replaced Connor Natella at the Fawcett's Field helm last month, added: "I was impressed with Buckland, they were a class act and we are still finding our feet.

"I asked the youngsters to compete and put in a team performance and, by and large, they did.

"All in all it was a fair result and they deserved their win and also the cushion of a few goals. But we worked hard and I was pleased with

Boatmen boss realistic over repeating Vase win

Tough draw in second round for young side

WITH his new-look Sholing side still a work in progress, Dave Diaper doesn't expect to replicate the club's sparkling FA Vase success of 2014.

But with a handful of those Wembley heroes still playing for the club, he would never write the Boatmen off, writes Wendy Gee.

After seeing off Laverstock & Ford 3-1 on Saturday, Sholing have been handed a tough draw away at Western Premier outfit Buckland Athletic in the second round proper on November 21.

That alone represents a stern test for the Boatmen who, having lost seven of their heroic Wembley starting 11, are less than four months into a three-year rebuilding plan.

Great faith

But Diaper has great faith in the young players coming through and, with the likes of Barry and Byron Mason, Kev Brewster, Marvin McLean, Dan Miller and Pete Castle (currently injured) still around to pass on the benefit of their Wembley experience, he believes the Boatmen still have plenty to offer in the Vase.

'We're under no illusions about how good a side we had in 2014 and the standards we've got to reach, but we will never write our-selves off," he said.

"We've got a younger team now, but the good thing is that we've still got four or five players left with experience of actually winning it and it's good they're still around to pass that experience on.

"I said before the Laverstock game that if your name is on the Vase, it's on it. We found that out two years ago.

"It's not always the best team that wins each game but, overall, it's the best side that lifts the trophy.

"As the rounds progressed we had a sneaking feeling that it was going to be our year. "We knew the luck was going with us when the ball hit the post and went in rather than hit the post and came out again.

"We've got a tough draw in the next round away at Buckland, who are fourth in their league, but you don't get any easy games in

"Beating Laverstock wasn't easy, but sometimes I prefer playing a side like Buckland who are near the top of their league because you know you've got to be at your best to beat

Sholing did much of the hard work in the first half against Lavvy as goals by Dougie Rowe - his first since returning to the club and top gun Dan Mason put them 2-0 up. Mason struck again in the 53rd minute – his 19th goal of a prolific campaign – before Rob Gallagher pulled one back for the Sydenhams One visitors late on.

The game ended just shy of the 90-minute mark due to a collision between Barry Mason and Laverstock 'keeper Acer Burton, who was taken to hospital with a knee injury.

Despite both clubs texting through the result as a 3-1 Sholing win, there was some confusion when it appeared on the official FA website as an 88th-minute abandonment meaning the tie would have to be replayed.

But, assisted by the co-operation of Lavvy boss Rob Lakeman, common sense prevailed and it was agreed the result would stand.

Laverstock later expressed their thanks to Sholing and their physio Tash Bowers for taking care of stricken 'keeper Burton while they waited for an ambulance to arrive.

The Wiltshire club tweeted: "Massive thank you to @sholingfc, Tash and other of-

"Absolute top class care for our injured 'keeper in the last minutes.'

Claridge: Come and roar us to Vase win

MANAGER Steve Claridge is craving a 1,000 attendance to roar the bookmakers second favourites Salisbury to victory in a plum second round FA Vase tie with Cornish outfit AFC St Austell.

Claridge is drumming up support to help pack the Ray Mac and register a record crowd since Premier League boys AFC Bournemouth's visit attracted 1,727 fans, writes Joel Holt.

Two weeks today (November 21) is when Whites, the leaders of Sydenhams Wessex Premier Division, resume their quest to reach Wembley against the South West Peninsula League outfit.

Phil Lafferty's charges, who are preparing to make the 320-mile round trip, enter the competition at this stage after reaching the semifinals last term, where they lost out to eventual runners-up Glossop North End 2-1 on aggregate.

The result and notable success of the opposition is something Claridge admits he is wary of.

"I would imagine this will be viewed as one of the ties of the round, given St Austell's record. said Claridge, whose team are 5/1, which dropped from sixes earlier in the week, to win the competition, according to the latest odds on Bet-

"It's a tough draw, not an ideal one for us, but at least we are at home. They are clearly a good side, judging by their results last season.

The fact that they have only come into the competition at the second round stage after their run last season is also proof of that.

"We want to go a long way in this competition and to do that you have to beat teams like this at some point.

"It should certainly be a great game for the supporters and a big occasion at this level.

"I hope we can see the first 1,000plus crowd of our first competitive season.'

The encounter is Whites' reward demolishing Calne Town, of Western League Division One, 6-2 last weekend through Brandon Mundy, Kane O'Keefe (2), Sam Wilson, Robbie Matthews and Ashley Jarvis.

The winner of the clash, which is one of 64 at this stage, will bank £1,000 in prize money Favourites Hereford, priced at 7/2, play Haughmond at their fortress, Edgar Street, while despite St Austell's terrific run, they are 50/1 to lift the trophy.

Dawson and Vince head off to Dubai

LIAM Dawson and James Vince head to Dubai with the England Performance Programme on Wednesday.

Former England U19 captain Dawson was a late call-up the two and a half-week long batting and spin camp, following the thumb injury that ruled out fellow slow-left-arm all-rounder Zafar Ansari.

The sub-continent training is being used as preparation for England Lions' five-match T20 series against Pakistan 'A', which begins on December 7.

Also in the squad is Danny Briggs. Both will benefit from being coached by former New Zealand spinner Daniel Vettori, who will be working with EPP Lead Spin Bowling Coach, Peter Such.

Vince and the rest of the batsmen will be working with former South Africa star Gary Kirsten, one of the most successful and respected coaches in world cricket.

Dawson could yet replace Ansari in the England Lions squad that will be captained by Vince in Dubai next Another Lions squad, which has still to be named, will face Pakistan A in a five-match one-day series in January.

Following Dawson's EPP call-up, National Selector James Whitaker said: "The training camp in Dubai presents an ideal opportunity for Liam to work closely with the EPP lead coaches and experience what it is like to be in an England environment.

"This is essential as he continues to develop his all-round game and push for international recognition.

"It is unfortunate that Zafar's recovery from injury has not progressed at a rate that would allow him to participate fully in the EPP batting and spin camp in the UAE at present. "But we will continue to monitor his

"But we will continue to monitor his progress closely and will consider involving him in the later stages of this winter's EPP and Lions programme, once he regains full fitness."

Batting and spin camp: Danny Briggs (Sussex), Joe Clarke (Worcestershire), Liam Dawson, James Vince (Hampshire), Daniel Bell-Drummond (Kent), Ben Foakes (Surrey), Dawid Malan (Middlesex), Stephen Parry (Lancashire), Tom Westley (Essex), Ross Whiteley (Worcestershire).

● Left-arm fast bowler Mark Footitt, who has joined Surrey after taking 76 Championship wickets at 23 in division two for Derbyshire last season, is on the fast bowlers' camp to Potchefstroom, South Africa with Jake Ball (Notts) Tom Curran (Surrey), Craig Miles (Gloucestershire), Tymal Mills (Sussex) and Somerset's Overton

Will Briggs be hit

WHEN Danny Briggs signed for Sussex last month, he became the 14th nonoverseas Hampshire player to leave for another county in the last decade.

Four of the others went to Surrey, two to Kent, Somerset and Gloucestershire and the rest to Nottinghamshire, Lancashire and Middlesex.

Together they make a handy squad of 13, but some have been more successful than others, writes Simon Walter.

Michael Brown (2004-08), Surrey - MISS

Left for Surrey, frustrated at his lack of one-day opportunities. But he missed all of 2010 before an elbow injury and a long-term shoulder problem forced his retirement midway through the 2011 season, aged 31. The Lancastrian became chairman of hometown club Burnley CC and is also as now an investment manager in the City.

Michael Lumb (2007-11), Nottinghamshire - HIT

Turned down the offer of a new two-year contract to join Nottinghamshire towards the end of the 2011 season, with the offer of a three-year deal nearer to his Yorkshire roots too much to resist.

The opening batsman's first-class records for Hampshire (50 matches) and Notts (54) are uncannily similar; 2997 runs at 36.54 and 3026 at 36.45 respectively (he made 4194 at 34.09 for Yorkshire).

Kevin Pietersen (2005-10), Surrey - MISS

rey - MISS
Allowed to join Surrey on loan in 2010 season, he was out first ball in his first innings. But has made 1317 runs at a Bradmanesque 101.3 in the 12 LV County Championship matches he has played for Surrey (he made 524 runs at 43.66 in seven Championship appearances for Hampshire).

That record was significantly boosted by his unbeaten 355 against Leicestershire at The Oval in May. The 35 year-old hoped the move

The 35 year-old hoped the move to Surrey and that triple century would earn him a Test recall, but it was not to be.

Johann Myburgh (2011), Somerset -MISS

Dropped in May of his first season with Hampshire, he had a brief stint with Durham in 2012, primarily as a T20 player before returning to the County Championship with Somerset.

Has made 932 Championship runs at 28.2 in two seasons at Taunton. Could not stop Somerset losing by six runs at The Ageas Bowl in their last T20 game of last season. Under contract to Somerset next year.

A key player as Gloucestershire won this year's Royal London One-Day Cup, a run that included a dramatic quarter-final win against Hampshire.

Made his maiden first-class century in July (102 against Leicestershire) but has been particularly effective in limited-overs cricket. Averages 23 with the bat (598 runs) and 22 with the ball (42 wickets) in T20, with his best all-round performance coming in a win against Hampshire at Cheltenham in July (31 not out and 2-15). Averages 36 with bat and ball (947 runs and 34 wickets) in one-day cricket.

first-class wickets at 23.49 – placing him sixth in the list of Championship wicket-takers.

That compared with 41 seconddivision wickets for Hampshire in 2014 and 59 for Kent in 2012.

Unfortunate not to set up a T20 semi-final against Hampshire this year, with Kent losing their tied quarter-final against tournament winners Lancashire on fewer wickets lost, despite Coles' 3-22.

Michael Bates (2010-14) Somerset MISS

After being controversially released last September, the wicketkeeper's search for a county seemed to be over when he impressed Somerset and played six Championship matches in 2015.

But he did not get the runs he needed (53 in nine innings at 8.83) and will not be returning to Taunton next season. Bates also briefly played for Wiltshire after being axed two years after helping Hampshire complete the 2012 limitedovers double

Adam Rouse (2011-13), Gloucestershire MISS

Another wicketkeeper frustrated by the lack of opportunity at The Ageas Bowl, Rouse played four first-class games in a short term deal with Gloucestershire (he played one for Hampshire), as well as two one-day matches and seven T20 games, only to be released once again. Now a personal trainer.

David Griffiths (2006-13), Kent MISS

The Isle of Wight-born fast bowler has been restricted to one Championship appearance for Kent in two seasons due to injury.

In his sole outing, against Gloucestershire in September 2014, Griffiths bagged a career-best 6-63.

He appeared in two T20 Blast games in 2015 before his season was ended by a back injury.

Chris Tremlett (2000-09), Surrey

Left Hampshire for a fresh start to boost his England prospects. He spent six seasons at The Oval before announcing his retirement in August.

Took 264 first-class wickets at 28 apiece for Hampshire and 118 at 29 for Surrey, where he bowled without painkillers for the first time in his career.

It would have been many more but for his injuries. His career peaked during his time at The Oval, when he took 17 Ashes wickets at 23.35 during England's memorable 2010-11 success.

Kabir Ali (2010-12), Lancashire - MISS

Restricted to 17 Championship wickets at 30 apiece from seven games for Lancashire last year, to take his career tally to 500, before retiring. Now running the Kabir Ali School of Cricket.

Shaun Udal (1989-2007), Middlesex - HIT

Took 702 first-class wickets at 32 apiece for Hampshire before joining Middlesex at the age of 38, within a couple of years of becoming England's oldest debutant for 17 years. Was back at the Rose Bowl to lead Middlesex to a memorable T20 triumph in his first season. Captained Middlesex for three years, taking another 100 first-class wickets at 31, before retiring at the age of 41. Now owner of branding company Cotton Graphics.

David Balcombe (2006-14), Surrey - MISS

Returned to his home county after a disappointing 2014 during which he was plagued by a back injury, having taken 144 first-class wickets at 33 for Hampshire. Was restricted to 12 wickets at 17.5 in five Second Eleven Championship appearances but has another year on his Oval contract.

Gatting fears for future of English spin

MIKE Gatting has cited Hampshire's Mason Crane as one of English cricket's few spin talents.

Gatting believes England's spin options are "dying away" and fears modern trends in county cricket are hindering hopes of recovering the situation.

England's spinners failed to impose themselves during the 2-0 series defeat to Pakistan in the United Arab Emirates, where pitches were made to favour the slow bowlers. England selected a three-pronged England selected a three-pronged spin attack of Adil Rashid, Moeen Ali and Samit Patel in Sharjah, but James Anderson and Stuart Broad took 11 of the 20 Pakistan wickets to fall.

Gatting thinks an over-reliance on the pacemen can be traced back to county cricket, where seam-friendly wickets have made the role of a spinner an afterthought for many domestic captains.

The former England skipper believes there are promising young slow bowlers in domestic ranks - pointing to 18-year-old Hampshire leg-spinner Mason Crane as an example - but is concerned such talents are not being allowed to blossom by a lack of opportunity on seam-friendly wickets. He said: "(The denth of English good youngsters coming through, but there are not enough wickets conducive to spin in the UK any more.

"People would rather use the seamers. Our wickets don't turn much these days and that's going to come back and bite us quite severely if we don't do something about it.

"Yes, we're used to playing in 'English conditions', but when I played we used to have two spinners in the side and when you got to the end of the season the wickets did turn and therefore you got an idea of how to play spin bowling.

"Sadly now the art seems to be dying away and the spinners dying away."

With Test tours away to India and Bangladesh next year the problem is more acute and Gatting thinks English spinners are simply not bowling enough to allow them to make the step up to international ranks.

"The seamers are used to bowling on these wickets, they've worked together, they've worked on their discipline and they've worked on reverse swing and the spinners just haven't had enough bowling," he said.

"Adil plays up in Yorkshire. Moeen has been playing but only seems to bowl in Test matches and doesn't bowl that many overs. The great thing about spinners is you have got to bowl lots of overs. If you don't do that you're in trouble."

Recalling FA Cup heroics of the past ...

Eastleigh were this weekend making only their third appearance at th first round stage of the FA Cup.

What's more, it is only 12 months since the Silverlake Stadium club enjoyed their second flirtation with the business end of what remains the most revered domestic knock-out competition in world football, writes PAUL MCNAMARA.

In November last year Ben Strevens pounced at the death to send a visiting Lincoln City side packing, and set up a clash with Southport.

A wretched Sunday afternoon on Merseyside, however, saw defender Dean Beckwith sent off as Eastleigh let a one-goal lead slip and, with it, their chance of a blockbuster tie against a Premier League giant.

Prior to last season's mini-run, the Spitfires' sole taste of first round action had come in 2009, when Ian Baird's side were undone by Jason Walker's stoppage time winner for Barrow, a team then playing a division higher than their Conference South opponents.

Here, I take a look at how other non league Hampshire clubs have fared in the FA Cup.

HAVANT

Ben Strevens scored a late FA Cup winner for Eastleigh last November. round in 2008 is best remembered for its ending. The Hawks contested a third round-replay against that season's League One champions, Swansea City, knowing the prize was a trip to Liverpool.

The attendant pressure, then, made the 4-2 vanquishing of Roberto Martinez's team all the more impressive.

While they made a decent fist of their Anfield appearance, leading twice before succumbing to a 5-2 defeat, it is all too easy to overlook the impressive manner in which Shaun Gale's side negotiated the opening phases of their adventure.

A 1-0 win at then Conference Premier club York City propelled the Hawks into round two for the first time in their history.

With the benefit of foresight, the York Press newspaper might not have described the home team's defeat, inflicted on them by Mo Harkin's firsthalf goal, as a 'humiliation'.

The West Leigh Park team were undaunted by the prospect of going to League Two Notts County next - and Tony Taggart's 87th minute goal sealed the Hawks' 1-0 triumph.

How Havant stunned the football world

It was a result met with howls of derision by a majority of the Meadow Lane crowd, while Martinez would go onto label the Hawks' a 'pub team' after his Swans outfit were held to a 1-1 draw in the initial third round clash between the sides.

Unperturbed, Havant were chalking their name into FA Cup folklore. And, while 2008 signalled the apogee of their relationship with the fabled competition, it was by no means an isolated Hawks' tilt at cup glory.

A four-figure West Leigh crowd watched the club's maiden first round appearance in 2000, when Conference Premier Southport ground out a 2-1

Two years later another team from non-league's top-flight did for Havant & Waterlooville's dreams at the firstround stage. Dagenham & Redbridge nicked a five-goal thriller at Victoria Road, with Warren Haughton, now of talkSPORT fame, scoring both Hawks'

This, however, would not be a cup-tie to sit prominently in the club's annals, Havant's Richard Pacquette (right) celebrates a goal against Swansea and not only because the League One Londoners were 2-1 winners.

The match lost its edge when, on police advice, it was switched to Fratton Park.

A crowd of 5,793 was swallowed up by Portsmouth's relatively cavernous home, contributing to a subdued atmosphere and an estimated £10,000 hit to the Hawks' coffers.

That cash was, of course, recouped, and then some, two years later.

Following Havant & Waterlooville's 2008 heroics, it was no surprise when ITV took their cameras to West Leigh Park one season later, with Brentford the visitors for a first-round tie.

Nevertheless, the ruthless Bees, that term's League Two title winners, were in no mood to play the role of Goliath to the Hawks' David, easing to a 3-1 victory. Glamour was in short supply when Havant & Waterlooville made round one in 2010, initially in the identity of their opponents, Conference North side Droylsden – and then in the result, a facile 2-0 win for the Manchester club.

AFC Bournemouth are currently in the midst of their first-ever sea-son in the top-flight, and currently find themselves struggling after winning the Championship title on the final day of last season.

Naturally, those who come up to the big time are often next season's favourites to drop. While some prosper and thrive, the pressure is too much for others.

Here, DANNY MAIORCA looks at how every single side promoted to the top-flight since 1992 has fared, with those immediately relegated highlighted in bold:

1992/1993 IPSWICH: The Division One champions performed as expected, eventually finishing 16th and three points clear of the drop.

Under the management of John Lyall, the Tractor Boys enjoyed two lengthy cup runs – reaching the quarter-finals of both the League Cup and FA Cup. They lost to Sheffield Wednesday and Arsenal re-MIDDLESBROUGH: winning automatic promotion with the Suffolk side, Boro's first stint in the Premier League was short-lived and they went down after just one season.

Even though they won four of their first seven games, the North East outfit ended the campaign five points adrift of safety.

BLACKBURN: Rovers had won the play-offs to join the other two sides in the Premier League, and with the wealth of local owner Jack Walker finished fourth - one point short of a UEFA Cup spot.

The deal to sign Alan Shearer for just over £3 million was a new British record and despite missing chunks of the campaign due to injury, the former Saints star still finished their top scorer with 16 goals in all competitions.

1993/1994

NEWCASTLE: The Magpies took inspiration from Rovers' first-season success and went one better than the Lancastrians upon their return to the big time, qualifying for the UEFA Cup thanks to a thirdplaced finish.

Andy Cole netted an astonishing 41 goals in all competitions, and his partnership up front with Peter Beardsley produced 55 strikes in the league for the pair of them.

Kevin Keegan's men also matched the then-record for the biggest-ever Premier League victory, beating Swindon Town 7-1.

WEST HAM: Having come to terms with the sale of captain Julian Dicks to Liverpool, the Hammers enjoyed a solid season upon their return from the second tier and finished 13th.

The East Londoners also managed to finish above Chelsea and Tottenham, beating the latter 4-1 in a memorable match for the Iron at BOLTON: Wanderers fell back into the abyss and for most of the season occupied the bottom of the table, where they finished. They finished nine points adrift of the 17th-placed Saints.

1996/1997

The Jubilee Park team, who merged with Havant Town in 1998, made their first round debut in 1968, where Kettering Town proved too strong for them.

Wycombe Wanderers disappointed 4,500 home fans in 1976, winning a tightly-contested first round tie at Waterlooville.

Seven years later the non-leaguers' valiant efforts to overcome Fourth Division Northampton Town were thwarted at the third attempt; the Cobblers eventually sealing a 2-0 win following two 1-1 draws.

While Havant Town didn't make an impression on the FA Cup, the same is not true of another Hampshire-based non-league team which now exists under a different guise.

Farnborough Town, who reformed as Farnborough FC in 2007, couldn't have imagined what would unfold next when they thumped Halesowen Town in an FA Cup first round replay in November 1991

Regardless of the four division gulf between the teams, however, they could not be split on the day, with a 1-1 draw meaning that Farnborough would get a second go under the Upton Park lights.

West Ham squeezed through 1-0, but the club that was playing in the Surrey Senior League just 20 years before their tussle with the Hammers had developed an appetite for the cup.

In November 1993 they were drawn at home to an Exeter City side managed by Alan Ball. The Devonians came from behind to win 3-1 and, within a few months, Ball was in charge at The Dell.

A 1-1 draw at Brentford in the first round in November 1995 set up a Cherrywood Road replay that attracted the Sky cameras, once more. The third tier team were too hot to handle in this instance, though, with Farnborough slumping to a 4-0 defeat.

Harrogate Town didn't pose such a problem in 2002, however, as Farnborough embarked on their finest ever FA Cup run, with a first round 5-1 home demolition of the North Yorkshire side.

SUNDERLAND: Sunderland finished seventh under the guidance of Reid, with 30-goal Kevin Phillips scoring over half of their final goals tally.

It meant he became the first-ever player in the Premier League era to win Europe's Golden Shoe award, and the only from a newly-promoted team.

BRADFORD CITY: Bradford completed the greatest of escapes, securing survival on the final day after defender David Wetherall earned a shock 1-0 victory against Liverpool at Valley Parade.

SIX months ago, Barton Peveril proudly celebrated a Hampshire Sixth Forms Colleges Cup double, with their first and second teams holding the silverware aloft.

Now they're suffering a double dose of the blues after Brockenhurst knocked them out at the opening round stage of both competitions, writes Mike Vimpany.

BP arguably got the worst pick when the Peter Munro and Second XI Cup draws were made and their worst fears were realised with 2-1 and 3-2 defeats for their respective sides.

But Barton will look back on two moments when the cup escaped from their grasp.

First, Matt Bainbridge saw his header hit the inside of the Brock post and bounce into keeper Harry Gravett's grateful hands.

Then, just after Lewis Wild had gone close, Josh Clarke was sent sprawling, replacement goalkeeper Lee Vint made that penalty save to take the wind out of BP's sails Oli Shrubsole caught the eye in midfield for Brock, for whom Turner almost added a third with a glancing header before Matt Bainbridge for a consolation goal for the deposed cup holders.

BP looked set for a place in the BP looked set for a place in the Second XI Cup quarter-finals when goals by Sean Mckenna and Brandon Lillie gave them a 2-0 lead against Brockenhurst II.

But the New Forest side came storming back with Blessings Chibamba scoring twice – one was a stunning free kick – and Rian Drake giving them a 3-2 win.

Farnborough have all three of their sides through in the Colleges Cups, with the first team getting a walk over against St Vincent and their other sides hitting both Portsmouth II and Sparsholt III for six.

That's something Richard Taunton's have matched, with coach Tom Barge describing the first team's 3-1 win over Sparsholt as "probably our best performance of the season".

Sparsholt took the lead – arguably against the run of play – while RTC squandered their chances, one Callum Fitzehorswell contrived to hit over the bar from just a few vards out.

Taunton equalised when Tom Ladbury latched on to a through ball from Shay Hollinsworth before half-time.

RTC, unbeaten in the B Division this season, continued to boss the game with Fitzehorswell atoning for his earlier blip with a fine solo strike.

Shay Hollingsworth hit the Sparsholt before OTs & Romsey cricket prospect Elliot Mitchell-Lee then completed the scoring with a 25-yard free kick. It was his first goal for RTC.

Peter Symonds toasted a hattrick of cup successes, Harry Bayles celebrating a hat-trick in the 6-0 PMC drubbing of South Downs.

Callum Doyle, Theo Servini, and Sam Beadle completed the scoring

Double trouble for BP as Brock take spoils

Peter Symonds II came out on top in a 12-goal thriller against Queen Mary's, Jay Bugg and Max Kirwan each scoring twice.

Tom Steggall, Sam Ross, and Pete Thatcher scored singles, while Matt Begbie (2), Max Kelleher (2) and Scott Murgatroyd kept QMC in the hunt before they conceded a 7-5 defeat.

Possibly PSC's best win came at 3rd XI level where a George Hodkins brace earned the Winchester college a 2-0 win over Itchen.

THIS is how I did it! Substitute Brockenhurst goalie Lee Vint stages a re-enactment of his crucial second half penalty save, when he dived full stretch to his right-hand post to deny Matt Brewer a spot kick goal which would have let Barton Peveril back in the tie.

Vint took over the goalkeeper's jersey when Harry Gravett (pictured looking on) injured his knee and, within minutes of stepping into the breach, found himself in the penalty firing line.

There's the classic race against time in a chapter entitled From Hospital Bed to Glasgow Gold – featuring Sheffield's Nick Matthew, who pipped bitter rival James Willstrop for the Commonwealth Games title in 2014

Matthew embarked on a breathless six-week recovery programme following surgery, commandeering Jessica Ennis-Hill's coveted English Institute of Sport 'game-ready' knee-icing machine because "she was heavily pregnant... and didn't really need hers!"

Deeply honoured to be Team England's flag-bearer at the opening ceremony, Matthew was accompanied by his loyal physio Jade, carrying a seat, so he could rest "every time we walked 10 metres as we wedged towards Celtic Park... I think some of the athletes behind me thought I was some kind of diva!"

Both the author and respected coach Malcolm Willstrop are in awe of Ramy Ashour, Gilmour lauds: "The finest rackets player I have ever seen" and Willstrop, in his foreword, describes the Egyptian as "the most original player ever to have lived".

It's impossible not to warm to Ashour in Ramy's Resurrection as he beats Mohamed 'The Beast' Elshorbagy to win the 2014 World Championship in Doha, despite preparation plagued by injury. Squash, more than a game?

Squash, more than a game It is to the handsome 28-year-old from Cairo, who says: "It teaches you discipline and commitment, self-respect, humility – all of which you can use in your social life."
